Specifically, the method comprises establishing a predetermined arrangement of cards as a winning bonus award; dealing a first initial five card hand to a player; determining whether any of the first initial five cards match any of the predetermined arrangement of cards and if any matches occur, noting the matched cards; allowing the player to play out the first initial five card hand according to the conventional manner of play of video poker; continuing to deal subsequent initial five card hands and determining whether any of the cards of each subsequent hand match any of the predetermined arrangement of cards and noting the matched cards; continuing to allow the player to play out each of the subsequent initial five card hands according to the conventional manner of play of video poker; and when all the predetermined arrangement of cards have been matched, determining whether the player has achieved a bonus award.
